Raising Active Wild Readers

RAWR (Raising Active Wild Readers) helps to prevent the "Summer Slide" by encouraging kids to read during the summer. Partnering with the USD 305 Free Summer Meals Program and the Salina Public Library, Salina Area United Way volunteers and staff distribute books at grab and go meal sites. Youth select free books, which are theirs to keep for their home-library. The program runs throughout the summer at meal sites in Salina. Over 3,600 books were distributed this summer, 2022, and more than 16,000 books have been given out in 8 years.

FutureNow: Finance

Imagine being able to see ten years into the future. Saline County high school students may participate in a fast-paced, hands-on financial literacy exercise. Students complete a survey describing their lives as 26-year-olds: their jobs, wages, family, homes, shopping habits, and entertainment. Results are compared with school performance, and then students are assigned fictional jobs, salaries and families. Students are challenged, using their salaries, to purchase life necessities: child care, transportation, groceries home, utilities, etc., plus plan for fun things like vacations and entertainment. The FutureNow: Finance collaborative program is possible thanks to partnerships with Communities in Schools Mid-America, USD305.
